

scpols.com®

Subscribe to C&E

E-mail Go

CAMPAIGNS & ELECTIONS®

- FEATURES
- LATEST NEWS
- RESOURCES
- PRESS RELEASES
- ADVERTISING
- CAMPAIGN CONTROL
- SEMINARS
- ABOUT C&E

Latest News

- Statehouse Tightens Security
- McCain's Speech In Charleston
- League Of Women Voters Pushing Teen Registration
- McCain At S.C. State
- State Dems Could Move Up Date
- Great Falls Case Gets Political
- Charleston's Riley Subpoenaed
- McCain In S.C. Tonight
- McCain Accuses Clinton Of Indecisiveness
- Judges Don't Like Greenville Court Site

Events

- GOP Presidential Debate -- 01.10.08
- Barnwell GOP Dinner -- 10.22.07
- Loris Bog-off -- 10.20.07
- Republican Campaign School - 10.19.07
- Ask Mitt Anything -- 10.18.07
- Romney Barbecue -- 10.18.07
- Romney Meet And Greet -- 10.18.07
- Aiken County Dems Fish Fry -- 10.11.07
- Jasper County Dems Banquet -- 10.11.07
- Clarendon County GOP Meeting -- 10.11.07

Press Releases

- Richardson Takes On Edwards
- Obama Says Bush Veto Hurts Children
- Dodd Wants Firm Deadline For War's End
- Spratt To Discuss Energy
- Obama Heading To Aiken
- Team Clinton Touring State This Weekend
- Huckabee Raises $1 million
- Brownback Discusses Iraq
- Clyburn Not Happy With Bush Veto
- Romney Tops $18 million

Setting The Stage

By - John Boyanoski
(July 31, 2007)

Not many people can say they've seen President Bush zoom by them on a bicycle first thing in the morning followed by a horde of Secret Service agents in golf carts, ambulances and fire trucks.

But it was an everyday experience for Keith Thornhill and the rest of the team at the Charleston-based Production Design Associates during the 2004 G-8 Summit.

"We'd hear this big commotion and look up, and be like 'holy smoke, that's the president,'" said Thornhill, the company's project manager and in charge of most political events.

PDA is a 16-year-old company that does video, audio and lights for all kinds of events, but has added a very big customer in the last few years -- the White House. And that has led to numerous other political events including the Democratic presidential debate at The Citadel last week and Bush's stop in Charleston the next day.

The company started working with the White House after a December 2001 event at The Citadel, Thornhill said.

"We established a good relationship," he said. "It just went from there."

Thornhill said the company has done at least 60 events with people such as Bush, Vice President Dick Cheney, U.S. Sen. John Kerry, D-Mass., and the Republican National Committee. They did the 2005 Inaugural ball. During the last week of the 2004 campaign, Thornhill went from Fort Myers, Fla., to Pontiac, Mich., then to Miami in a course of three days following President Bush.

"I'll be honest with you. It's awesome," Thornhill said. "You are right in the mix of things."

This is not easy work. They spent almost six weeks planning the schematics for the Charleston debate

PDA crews started working 10-hour days the Wednesday before the Monday debate to set up the massive amount of equipment. There was between 40,000 and 50,000 pounds of lighting equipment over the stage where the eight candidates spoke. There was 600 feet of trusses. There was the video wall where the clips from YouTube users were shown to the candidates. There were two 10 and half feet by seven and half video screens set up in the post-debate spin room.

Thornhill said the first 30 or so events were stressful because of the pressure of working around political figures. A blown fuse or falling light could have major repercussions.

"You realize that one mistake could create a moment that could cost somebody an election," he said. "It was nerve-racking. The worry factor is still there."

The most interesting event, though, was the 2004 G-8 Summit held at Sea Island, Ga. Besides the morning Bush caravan, the team would see people such as former British Prime Minister Tony Blair, Canadian Prime Minister Paul Martin and former French President Jacques Chirac.

"You'd be standing there, look away, and the next thing you know Paul Martin Would be standing next to you," he said.

John Boyanoski can be reached at jboyanoski@scpols.com.

BOOKMARK & SHARE THIS!

- Digg
- Google
- del.icio.us
- Yahoo!
- Reddit
- Facebook

SEARCH

Go

ADVERTISEMENT

RAISE CAMPAIGN MONEY ONLINE
CLICK & PLEDGE
1-866-999-2542

2 days of the best campaign training in the country

CAMPAIGNS & ELECTIONS
The magazine covering the business and trends of politics
Subscribe Now

To stay up-to-date on the latest campaign news, visit all of the sites in the Campaigns & Elections network.

www.CampaignsandElections.com
www.OHPols.com
www.NJPols.com
www.NHPols.com
www.SCPols.com
www.MyPoliticalPages.com

Campaigns & Elections Magazine
1655 North Fort Myer Dr. Suite 825 Arlington, VA 22209
Subscriptions: 800-771-8252, Phone: 703-778-4028, Fax: 703-778-4024

Return Policy | Privacy Statement | Feedback | Site Index
Copyright 2007 Campaigns & Elections magazine.
All Rights Reserved

scpols.com®

Subscribe to C&E

E-mail Go

CAMPAIGNS & ELECTIONS®

FEATURES | LATEST NEWS | RESOURCES | PRESS RELEASES | ADVERTISING | CAMPAIGN CONTROL | SEMINARS | ABOUT C&E

Latest News

- Statehouse Tightens Security
- McCain's Speech In Charleston
- League Of Women Voters Pushing Teen Registration
- McCain At S.C. State
- State Dems Could Move Up Date
- Great Falls Case Gets Political
- Charleston's Riley Subpoenaed
- McCain In S.C. Tonight
- McCain Accuses Clinton Of Indecisiveness
- Judges Don't Like Greenville Court Site

Events

- GOP Presidential Debate -- 01.10.08
- Barnwell GOP Dinner -- 10.22.07
- Loris Bog-off -- 10.20.07
- Republican Campaign School - 10.19.07
- Ask Mitt Anything -- 10.18.07
- Romney Barbecue -- 10.18.07
- Romney Meet And Greet -- 10.18.07
- Aiken County Dems Fish Fry -- 10.11.07
- Jasper County Dems Banquet -- 10.11.07
- Clarendon County GOP Meeting -- 10.11.07

Press Releases

- Richardson Takes On Edwards
- Obama Says Bush Veto Hurts Children
- Dodd Wants Firm Deadline For War's End
- Spratt To Discuss Energy
- Obama Heading To Aiken
- Team Clinton Touring State This Weekend
- Huckabee Raises $1 million
- Brownback Discusses Iraq
- Clyburn Not Happy With Bush Veto
- Romney Tops $18 million

Setting The Stage

By - John Boyanoski
(July 31, 2007)

Not many people can say they've seen President Bush zoom by them on a bicycle first thing in the morning followed by a horde of Secret Service agents in golf carts, ambulances and fire trucks.

But it was an everyday experience for Keith Thornhill and the rest of the team at the Charleston-based Production Design Associates during the 2004 G-8 Summit.

"We'd hear this big commotion and look up, and be like 'holy smoke, that's the president,'" said Thornhill, the company's project manager and in charge of most political events.

PDA is a 16-year-old company that does video, audio and lights for all kinds of events, but has added a very big customer in the last few years -- the White House. And that has led to numerous other political events including the Democratic presidential debate at The Citadel last week and Bush's stop in Charleston the next day.

The company started working with the White House after a December 2001 event at The Citadel, Thornhill said.

"We established a good relationship," he said. "It just went from there."

Thornhill said the company has done at least 60 events with people such as Bush, Vice President Dick Cheney, U.S. Sen. John Kerry, D-Mass., and the Republican National Committee. They did the 2005 Inaugural ball. During the last week of the 2004 campaign, Thornhill went from Fort Myers, Fla., to Pontiac, Mich., then to Miami in a course of three days following President Bush.

"I'll be honest with you. It's awesome," Thornhill said. "You are right in the mix of things."

This is not easy work. They spent almost six weeks planning the schematics for the Charleston debate

PDA crews started working 10-hour days the Wednesday before the Monday debate to set up the massive amount of equipment. There was between 40,000 and 50,000 pounds of lighting equipment over the stage where the eight candidates spoke. There was 600 feet of trusses. There was the video wall where the clips from YouTube users were shown to the candidates. There were two 10 and half feet by seven and half video screens set up in the post-debate spin room.

Thornhill said the first 30 or so events were stressful because of the pressure of working around political figures. A blown fuse or falling light could have major repercussions.

"You realize that one mistake could create a moment that could cost somebody an election," he said. "It was nerve-racking. The worry factor is still there."

The most interesting event, though, was the 2004 G-8 Summit held at Sea Island, Ga. Besides the morning Bush caravan, the team would see people such as former British Prime Minister Tony Blair, Canadian Prime Minister Paul Martin and former French President Jacques Chirac.

"You'd be standing there, look away, and the next thing you know Paul Martin Would be standing next to you," he said.

John Boyanoski can be reached at jboyanoski@scpols.com.

BOOKMARK & SHARE THIS!

- Digg
- Google
- del.icio.us
- Yahoo!
- Reddit
- Facebook

SEARCH

Go

ADVERTISEMENT

RAISE CAMPAIGN MONEY ONLINE
CLICK & PLEDGE
1-866-999-2542

2 days of the best campaign training in the country

CAMPAIGNS & ELECTIONS
The magazine covering the business and trends of politics
Subscribe Now

To stay up-to-date on the latest campaign news, visit all of the sites in the Campaigns & Elections network.

www.CampaignsandElections.com
www.OHPols.com
www.NJPols.com
www.NHPols.com
www.SCPols.com
www.MyPoliticalPages.com

Campaigns & Elections Magazine
1655 North Fort Myer Dr. Suite 825 Arlington, VA 22209
Subscriptions: 800-771-8252, Phone: 703-778-4028, Fax: 703-778-4024

Return Policy | Privacy Statement | Feedback | Site Index
Copyright 2007 Campaigns & Elections magazine.
All Rights Reserved

scpols.com®

Subscribe to C&E

E-mail Go

CAMPAIGNS & ELECTIONS®

- FEATURES
- LATEST NEWS
- RESOURCES
- PRESS RELEASES
- ADVERTISING
- CAMPAIGN CONTROL
- SEMINARS
- ABOUT C&E

Latest News

- Statehouse Tightens Security
- McCain's Speech In Charleston
- League Of Women Voters Pushing Teen Registration
- McCain At S.C. State
- State Dems Could Move Up Date
- Great Falls Case Gets Political
- Charleston's Riley Subpoenaed
- McCain In S.C. Tonight
- McCain Accuses Clinton Of Indecisiveness
- Judges Don't Like Greenville Court Site

Events

- GOP Presidential Debate -- 01.10.08
- Barnwell GOP Dinner -- 10.22.07
- Loris Bog-off -- 10.20.07
- Republican Campaign School - 10.19.07
- Ask Mitt Anything -- 10.18.07
- Romney Barbecue -- 10.18.07
- Romney Meet And Greet -- 10.18.07
- Aiken County Dems Fish Fry -- 10.11.07
- Jasper County Dems Banquet -- 10.11.07
- Clarendon County GOP Meeting -- 10.11.07

Press Releases

- Richardson Takes On Edwards
- Obama Says Bush Veto Hurts Children
- Dodd Wants Firm Deadline For War's End
- Spratt To Discuss Energy
- Obama Heading To Aiken
- Team Clinton Touring State This Weekend
- Huckabee Raises $1 million
- Brownback Discusses Iraq
- Clyburn Not Happy With Bush Veto
- Romney Tops $18 million

Setting The Stage

By - John Boyanoski
(July 31, 2007)

Not many people can say they've seen President Bush zoom by them on a bicycle first thing in the morning followed by a horde of Secret Service agents in golf carts, ambulances and fire trucks.

But it was an everyday experience for Keith Thornhill and the rest of the team at the Charleston-based Production Design Associates during the 2004 G-8 Summit.

"We'd hear this big commotion and look up, and be like 'holy smoke, that's the president,'" said Thornhill, the company's project manager and in charge of most political events.

PDA is a 16-year-old company that does video, audio and lights for all kinds of events, but has added a very big customer in the last few years -- the White House. And that has led to numerous other political events including the Democratic presidential debate at The Citadel last week and Bush's stop in Charleston the next day.

The company started working with the White House after a December 2001 event at The Citadel, Thornhill said.

"We established a good relationship," he said. "It just went from there."

Thornhill said the company has done at least 60 events with people such as Bush, Vice President Dick Cheney, U.S. Sen. John Kerry, D-Mass., and the Republican National Committee. They did the 2005 Inaugural ball. During the last week of the 2004 campaign, Thornhill went from Fort Myers, Fla., to Pontiac, Mich., then to Miami in a course of three days following President Bush.

"I'll be honest with you. It's awesome," Thornhill said. "You are right in the mix of things."

This is not easy work. They spent almost six weeks planning the schematics for the Charleston debate

PDA crews started working 10-hour days the Wednesday before the Monday debate to set up the massive amount of equipment. There was between 40,000 and 50,000 pounds of lighting equipment over the stage where the eight candidates spoke. There was 600 feet of trusses. There was the video wall where the clips from YouTube users were shown to the candidates. There were two 10 and half feet by seven and half video screens set up in the post-debate spin room.

Thornhill said the first 30 or so events were stressful because of the pressure of working around political figures. A blown fuse or falling light could have major repercussions.

"You realize that one mistake could create a moment that could cost somebody an election," he said. "It was nerve-racking. The worry factor is still there."

The most interesting event, though, was the 2004 G-8 Summit held at Sea Island, Ga. Besides the morning Bush caravan, the team would see people such as former British Prime Minister Tony Blair, Canadian Prime Minister Paul Martin and former French President Jacques Chirac.

"You'd be standing there, look away, and the next thing you know Paul Martin Would be standing next to you," he said.

John Boyanoski can be reached at jboyanoski@scpols.com.

BOOKMARK & SHARE THIS!

- Digg
- del.icio.us
- Reddit
- Google
- Yahoo!
- Facebook

SEARCH

Go

ADVERTISEMENT

RAISE CAMPAIGN MONEY ONLINE
CLICK & PLEDGE
1-866-999-2542

2 days of the best campaign training in the country

CAMPAIGNS & ELECTIONS
The magazine covering the business and trends of politics
Subscribe Now

To stay up-to-date on the latest campaign news, visit all of the sites in the Campaigns & Elections network.

www.CampaignsandElections.com
www.OHPols.com
www.NJPols.com
www.NHPols.com
www.SCPols.com
www.MyPoliticalPages.com

Campaigns & Elections Magazine
1655 North Fort Myer Dr. Suite 825 Arlington, VA 22209
Subscriptions: 800-771-8252, Phone: 703-778-4028, Fax: 703-778-4024

Return Policy | Privacy Statement | Feedback | Site Index
Copyright 2007 Campaigns & Elections magazine.
All Rights Reserved

scpols.com®

Subscribe to C&E

E-mail Go

CAMPAIGNS & ELECTIONS®

FEATURES | LATEST NEWS | RESOURCES | PRESS RELEASES | ADVERTISING | CAMPAIGN CONTROL | SEMINARS | ABOUT C&E

Latest News

- Statehouse Tightens Security
- McCain's Speech In Charleston
- League Of Women Voters Pushing Teen Registration
- McCain At S.C. State
- State Dems Could Move Up Date
- Great Falls Case Gets Political
- Charleston's Riley Subpoenaed
- McCain In S.C. Tonight
- McCain Accuses Clinton Of Indecisiveness
- Judges Don't Like Greenville Court Site

Events

- GOP Presidential Debate -- 01.10.08
- Barnwell GOP Dinner -- 10.22.07
- Loris Bog-off -- 10.20.07
- Republican Campaign School - 10.19.07
- Ask Mitt Anything -- 10.18.07
- Romney Barbecue -- 10.18.07
- Romney Meet And Greet -- 10.18.07
- Aiken County Dems Fish Fry -- 10.11.07
- Jasper County Dems Banquet -- 10.11.07
- Clarendon County GOP Meeting -- 10.11.07

Press Releases

- Richardson Takes On Edwards
- Obama Says Bush Veto Hurts Children
- Dodd Wants Firm Deadline For War's End
- Spratt To Discuss Energy
- Obama Heading To Aiken
- Team Clinton Touring State This Weekend
- Huckabee Raises \$1 million
- Brownback Discusses Iraq
- Clyburn Not Happy With Bush Veto
- Romney Tops \$18 million

Setting The Stage

By - John Boyanoski
(July 31, 2007)

Not many people can say they've seen President Bush zoom by them on a bicycle first thing in the morning followed by a horde of Secret Service agents in golf carts, ambulances and fire trucks.

But it was an everyday experience for Keith Thornhill and the rest of the team at the Charleston-based Production Design Associates during the 2004 G-8 Summit.

"We'd hear this big commotion and look up, and be like 'holy smoke, that's the president,'" said Thornhill, the company's project manager and in charge of most political events.

PDA is a 16-year-old company that does video, audio and lights for all kinds of events, but has added a very big customer in the last few years -- the White House. And that has led to numerous other political events including the Democratic presidential debate at The Citadel last week and Bush's stop in Charleston the next day.

The company started working with the White House after a December 2001 event at The Citadel, Thornhill said.

"We established a good relationship," he said. "It just went from there."

Thornhill said the company has done at least 60 events with people such as Bush, Vice President Dick Cheney, U.S. Sen. John Kerry, D-Mass., and the Republican National Committee. They did the 2005 Inaugural ball. During the last week of the 2004 campaign, Thornhill went from Fort Myers, Fla., to Pontiac, Mich., then to Miami in a course of three days following President Bush.

"I'll be honest with you. It's awesome," Thornhill said. "You are right in the mix of things."

This is not easy work. They spent almost six weeks planning the schematics for the Charleston debate

PDA crews started working 10-hour days the Wednesday before the Monday debate to set up the massive amount of equipment. There was between 40,000 and 50,000 pounds of lighting equipment over the stage where the eight candidates spoke. There was 600 feet of trusses. There was the video wall where the clips from YouTube users were shown to the candidates. There were two 10 and half feet by seven and half video screens set up in the post-debate spin room.

Thornhill said the first 30 or so events were stressful because of the pressure of working around political figures. A blown fuse or falling light could have major repercussions.

"You realize that one mistake could create a moment that could cost somebody an election," he said. "It was nerve-racking. The worry factor is still there."

The most interesting event, though, was the 2004 G-8 Summit held at Sea Island, Ga. Besides the morning Bush caravan, the team would see people such as former British Prime Minister Tony Blair, Canadian Prime Minister Paul Martin and former French President Jacques Chirac.

"You'd be standing there, look away, and the next thing you know Paul Martin Would be standing next to you," he said.

John Boyanoski can be reached at jboyanoski@scpols.com.

BOOKMARK & SHARE THIS!

- Digg
- Google
- del.icio.us
- Yahoo!
- Reddit
- Facebook

SEARCH

Go

ADVERTISEMENT

RAISE CAMPAIGN MONEY ONLINE
CLICK & PLEDGE
1-866-999-2542

2 days of the best campaign training in the country

CAMPAIGNS & ELECTIONS
The magazine covering the business and trends of politics
Subscribe Now

To stay up-to-date on the latest campaign news, visit all of the sites in the Campaigns & Elections network.

www.CampaignsandElections.com
www.OHPols.com
www.NJPols.com
www.NHPols.com
www.SCpols.com
www.MyPoliticalPages.com

Campaigns & Elections Magazine
1655 North Fort Myer Dr. Suite 825 Arlington, VA 22209
Subscriptions: 800-771-8252, Phone: 703-778-4028, Fax: 703-778-4024

Return Policy | Privacy Statement | Feedback | Site Index
Copyright 2007 Campaigns & Elections magazine.
All Rights Reserved

scpols.com®

Subscribe to C&E

E-mail Go

CAMPAIGNS & ELECTIONS®

- FEATURES
- LATEST NEWS
- RESOURCES
- PRESS RELEASES
- ADVERTISING
- CAMPAIGN CONTROL
- SEMINARS
- ABOUT C&E

Latest News

- Statehouse Tightens Security
- McCain's Speech In Charleston
- League Of Women Voters Pushing Teen Registration
- McCain At S.C. State
- State Dems Could Move Up Date
- Great Falls Case Gets Political
- Charleston's Riley Subpoenaed
- McCain In S.C. Tonight
- McCain Accuses Clinton Of Indecisiveness
- Judges Don't Like Greenville Court Site

Events

- GOP Presidential Debate -- 01.10.08
- Barnwell GOP Dinner -- 10.22.07
- Loris Bog-off -- 10.20.07
- Republican Campaign School - 10.19.07
- Ask Mitt Anything -- 10.18.07
- Romney Barbecue -- 10.18.07
- Romney Meet And Greet -- 10.18.07
- Aiken County Dems Fish Fry -- 10.11.07
- Jasper County Dems Banquet -- 10.11.07
- Clarendon County GOP Meeting -- 10.11.07

Press Releases

- Richardson Takes On Edwards
- Obama Says Bush Veto Hurts Children
- Dodd Wants Firm Deadline For War's End
- Spratt To Discuss Energy
- Obama Heading To Aiken
- Team Clinton Touring State This Weekend
- Huckabee Raises $1 million
- Brownback Discusses Iraq
- Clyburn Not Happy With Bush Veto
- Romney Tops $18 million

Setting The Stage

By - John Boyanoski
(July 31, 2007)

Not many people can say they've seen President Bush zoom by them on a bicycle first thing in the morning followed by a horde of Secret Service agents in golf carts, ambulances and fire trucks.

But it was an everyday experience for Keith Thornhill and the rest of the team at the Charleston-based Production Design Associates during the 2004 G-8 Summit.

"We'd hear this big commotion and look up, and be like 'holy smoke, that's the president,'" said Thornhill, the company's project manager and in charge of most political events.

PDA is a 16-year-old company that does video, audio and lights for all kinds of events, but has added a very big customer in the last few years -- the White House. And that has led to numerous other political events including the Democratic presidential debate at The Citadel last week and Bush's stop in Charleston the next day.

The company started working with the White House after a December 2001 event at The Citadel, Thornhill said.

"We established a good relationship," he said. "It just went from there."

Thornhill said the company has done at least 60 events with people such as Bush, Vice President Dick Cheney, U.S. Sen. John Kerry, D-Mass., and the Republican National Committee. They did the 2005 Inaugural ball. During the last week of the 2004 campaign, Thornhill went from Fort Myers, Fla., to Pontiac, Mich., then to Miami in a course of three days following President Bush.

"I'll be honest with you. It's awesome," Thornhill said. "You are right in the mix of things."

This is not easy work. They spent almost six weeks planning the schematics for the Charleston debate

PDA crews started working 10-hour days the Wednesday before the Monday debate to set up the massive amount of equipment. There was between 40,000 and 50,000 pounds of lighting equipment over the stage where the eight candidates spoke. There was 600 feet of trusses. There was the video wall where the clips from YouTube users were shown to the candidates. There were two 10 and half feet by seven and half video screens set up in the post-debate spin room.

Thornhill said the first 30 or so events were stressful because of the pressure of working around political figures. A blown fuse or falling light could have major repercussions.

"You realize that one mistake could create a moment that could cost somebody an election," he said. "It was nerve-racking. The worry factor is still there."

The most interesting event, though, was the 2004 G-8 Summit held at Sea Island, Ga. Besides the morning Bush caravan, the team would see people such as former British Prime Minister Tony Blair, Canadian Prime Minister Paul Martin and former French President Jacques Chirac.

"You'd be standing there, look away, and the next thing you know Paul Martin Would be standing next to you," he said.

John Boyanoski can be reached at jboyanoski@scpols.com.

BOOKMARK & SHARE THIS!

- Digg
- del.icio.us
- Reddit
- Google
- Yahoo!
- Facebook

SEARCH

Go

ADVERTISEMENT

RAISE CAMPAIGN MONEY ONLINE
CLICK & PLEDGE
1-866-999-2542

2 days of the best campaign training in the country

CAMPAIGNS & ELECTIONS
The magazine covering the business and trends of politics
Subscribe Now

To stay up-to-date on the latest campaign news, visit all of the sites in the Campaigns & Elections network.

www.CampaignsandElections.com
www.OHPols.com
www.NJPols.com
www.NHPols.com
www.SCpols.com
www.MyPoliticalPages.com

Campaigns & Elections Magazine
1655 North Fort Myer Dr. Suite 825 Arlington, VA 22209
Subscriptions: 800-771-8252, Phone: 703-778-4028, Fax: 703-778-4024

Return Policy | Privacy Statement | Feedback | Site Index
Copyright 2007 Campaigns & Elections magazine.
All Rights Reserved

scpols.com®

Subscribe to C&E

E-mail Go

CAMPAIGNS & ELECTIONS®

- FEATURES
- LATEST NEWS
- RESOURCES
- PRESS RELEASES
- ADVERTISING
- CAMPAIGN CONTROL
- SEMINARS
- ABOUT C&E

Latest News

- Statehouse Tightens Security
- McCain's Speech In Charleston
- League Of Women Voters Pushing Teen Registration
- McCain At S.C. State
- State Dems Could Move Up Date
- Great Falls Case Gets Political
- Charleston's Riley Subpoenaed
- McCain In S.C. Tonight
- McCain Accuses Clinton Of Indecisiveness
- Judges Don't Like Greenville Court Site

Events

- GOP Presidential Debate -- 01.10.08
- Barnwell GOP Dinner -- 10.22.07
- Loris Bog-off -- 10.20.07
- Republican Campaign School - 10.19.07
- Ask Mitt Anything -- 10.18.07
- Romney Barbecue -- 10.18.07
- Romney Meet And Greet -- 10.18.07
- Aiken County Dems Fish Fry -- 10.11.07
- Jasper County Dems Banquet -- 10.11.07
- Clarendon County GOP Meeting -- 10.11.07

Press Releases

- Richardson Takes On Edwards
- Obama Says Bush Veto Hurts Children
- Dodd Wants Firm Deadline For War's End
- Spratt To Discuss Energy
- Obama Heading To Aiken
- Team Clinton Touring State This Weekend
- Huckabee Raises $1 million
- Brownback Discusses Iraq
- Clyburn Not Happy With Bush Veto
- Romney Tops $18 million

Setting The Stage

By - John Boyanoski
(July 31, 2007)

Not many people can say they've seen President Bush zoom by them on a bicycle first thing in the morning followed by a horde of Secret Service agents in golf carts, ambulances and fire trucks.

But it was an everyday experience for Keith Thornhill and the rest of the team at the Charleston-based Production Design Associates during the 2004 G-8 Summit.

"We'd hear this big commotion and look up, and be like 'holy smoke, that's the president,'" said Thornhill, the company's project manager and in charge of most political events.

PDA is a 16-year-old company that does video, audio and lights for all kinds of events, but has added a very big customer in the last few years -- the White House. And that has led to numerous other political events including the Democratic presidential debate at The Citadel last week and Bush's stop in Charleston the next day.

The company started working with the White House after a December 2001 event at The Citadel, Thornhill said.

"We established a good relationship," he said. "It just went from there."

Thornhill said the company has done at least 60 events with people such as Bush, Vice President Dick Cheney, U.S. Sen. John Kerry, D-Mass., and the Republican National Committee. They did the 2005 Inaugural ball. During the last week of the 2004 campaign, Thornhill went from Fort Myers, Fla., to Pontiac, Mich., then to Miami in a course of three days following President Bush.

"I'll be honest with you. It's awesome," Thornhill said. "You are right in the mix of things."

This is not easy work. They spent almost six weeks planning the schematics for the Charleston debate

PDA crews started working 10-hour days the Wednesday before the Monday debate to set up the massive amount of equipment. There was between 40,000 and 50,000 pounds of lighting equipment over the stage where the eight candidates spoke. There was 600 feet of trusses. There was the video wall where the clips from YouTube users were shown to the candidates. There were two 10 and half feet by seven and half video screens set up in the post-debate spin room.

Thornhill said the first 30 or so events were stressful because of the pressure of working around political figures. A blown fuse or falling light could have major repercussions.

"You realize that one mistake could create a moment that could cost somebody an election," he said. "It was nerve-racking. The worry factor is still there."

The most interesting event, though, was the 2004 G-8 Summit held at Sea Island, Ga. Besides the morning Bush caravan, the team would see people such as former British Prime Minister Tony Blair, Canadian Prime Minister Paul Martin and former French President Jacques Chirac.

"You'd be standing there, look away, and the next thing you know Paul Martin Would be standing next to you," he said.

John Boyanoski can be reached at jboyanoski@scpols.com.

BOOKMARK & SHARE THIS!

- Digg
- Google
- del.icio.us
- Yahoo!
- Reddit
- Facebook

SEARCH

Go

ADVERTISEMENT

RAISE CAMPAIGN MONEY ONLINE
CLICK & PLEDGE
1-866-999-2542

2 days of the best campaign training in the country

CAMPAIGNS & ELECTIONS
The magazine covering the business and trends of politics
Subscribe Now

To stay up-to-date on the latest campaign news, visit all of the sites in the Campaigns & Elections network.

www.CampaignsandElections.com
www.OHPols.com
www.NJPols.com
www.NHPols.com
www.SCPols.com
www.MyPoliticalPages.com

Campaigns & Elections Magazine
1655 North Fort Myer Dr. Suite 825 Arlington, VA 22209
Subscriptions: 800-771-8252, Phone: 703-778-4028, Fax: 703-778-4024

Return Policy | Privacy Statement | Feedback | Site Index
Copyright 2007 Campaigns & Elections magazine.
All Rights Reserved

scpols.com®

Subscribe to C&E

E-mail Go

CAMPAIGNS & ELECTIONS®

- FEATURES
- LATEST NEWS
- RESOURCES
- PRESS RELEASES
- ADVERTISING
- CAMPAIGN CONTROL
- SEMINARS
- ABOUT C&E

Latest News

- Statehouse Tightens Security
- McCain's Speech In Charleston
- League Of Women Voters Pushing Teen Registration
- McCain At S.C. State
- State Dems Could Move Up Date
- Great Falls Case Gets Political
- Charleston's Riley Subpoenaed
- McCain In S.C. Tonight
- McCain Accuses Clinton Of Indecisiveness
- Judges Don't Like Greenville Court Site

Events

- GOP Presidential Debate -- 01.10.08
- Barnwell GOP Dinner -- 10.22.07
- Loris Bog-off -- 10.20.07
- Republican Campaign School - 10.19.07
- Ask Mitt Anything -- 10.18.07
- Romney Barbecue -- 10.18.07
- Romney Meet And Greet -- 10.18.07
- Aiken County Dems Fish Fry -- 10.11.07
- Jasper County Dems Banquet -- 10.11.07
- Clarendon County GOP Meeting -- 10.11.07

Press Releases

- Richardson Takes On Edwards
- Obama Says Bush Veto Hurts Children
- Dodd Wants Firm Deadline For War's End
- Spratt To Discuss Energy
- Obama Heading To Aiken
- Team Clinton Touring State This Weekend
- Huckabee Raises $1 million
- Brownback Discusses Iraq
- Clyburn Not Happy With Bush Veto
- Romney Tops $18 million

Setting The Stage

By - John Boyanoski
(July 31, 2007)

Not many people can say they've seen President Bush zoom by them on a bicycle first thing in the morning followed by a horde of Secret Service agents in golf carts, ambulances and fire trucks.

But it was an everyday experience for Keith Thornhill and the rest of the team at the Charleston-based Production Design Associates during the 2004 G-8 Summit.

"We'd hear this big commotion and look up, and be like 'holy smoke, that's the president,'" said Thornhill, the company's project manager and in charge of most political events.

PDA is a 16-year-old company that does video, audio and lights for all kinds of events, but has added a very big customer in the last few years -- the White House. And that has led to numerous other political events including the Democratic presidential debate at The Citadel last week and Bush's stop in Charleston the next day.

The company started working with the White House after a December 2001 event at The Citadel, Thornhill said.

"We established a good relationship," he said. "It just went from there."

Thornhill said the company has done at least 60 events with people such as Bush, Vice President Dick Cheney, U.S. Sen. John Kerry, D-Mass., and the Republican National Committee. They did the 2005 Inaugural ball. During the last week of the 2004 campaign, Thornhill went from Fort Myers, Fla., to Pontiac, Mich., then to Miami in a course of three days following President Bush.

"I'll be honest with you. It's awesome," Thornhill said. "You are right in the mix of things."

This is not easy work. They spent almost six weeks planning the schematics for the Charleston debate

PDA crews started working 10-hour days the Wednesday before the Monday debate to set up the massive amount of equipment. There was between 40,000 and 50,000 pounds of lighting equipment over the stage where the eight candidates spoke. There was 600 feet of trusses. There was the video wall where the clips from YouTube users were shown to the candidates. There were two 10 and half feet by seven and half video screens set up in the post-debate spin room.

Thornhill said the first 30 or so events were stressful because of the pressure of working around political figures. A blown fuse or falling light could have major repercussions.

"You realize that one mistake could create a moment that could cost somebody an election," he said. "It was nerve-racking. The worry factor is still there."

The most interesting event, though, was the 2004 G-8 Summit held at Sea Island, Ga. Besides the morning Bush caravan, the team would see people such as former British Prime Minister Tony Blair, Canadian Prime Minister Paul Martin and former French President Jacques Chirac.

"You'd be standing there, look away, and the next thing you know Paul Martin Would be standing next to you," he said.

John Boyanoski can be reached at jboyanoski@scpols.com.

BOOKMARK & SHARE THIS!

- Digg
- del.icio.us
- Reddit
- Google
- Yahoo!
- Facebook

SEARCH

Go

ADVERTISEMENT

RAISE CAMPAIGN MONEY ONLINE
CLICK & PLEDGE
1-866-999-2542

2 days of the best campaign training in the country

CAMPAIGNS & ELECTIONS
The magazine covering the business and trends of politics
Subscribe Now

To stay up-to-date on the latest campaign news, visit all of the sites in the Campaigns & Elections network.

www.CampaignsandElections.com
www.OHPols.com
www.NJPols.com
www.NHPols.com
www.SCPols.com
www.MyPoliticalPages.com

Campaigns & Elections Magazine
1655 North Fort Myer Dr. Suite 825 Arlington, VA 22209
Subscriptions: 800-771-8252, Phone: 703-778-4028, Fax: 703-778-4024

Return Policy | Privacy Statement | Feedback | Site Index
Copyright 2007 Campaigns & Elections magazine.
All Rights Reserved

scpols.com®

Subscribe to C&E

E-mail Go

CAMPAIGNS & ELECTIONS®

- FEATURES
- LATEST NEWS
- RESOURCES
- PRESS RELEASES
- ADVERTISING
- CAMPAIGN CONTROL
- SEMINARS
- ABOUT C&E

Latest News

- Statehouse Tightens Security
- McCain's Speech In Charleston
- League Of Women Voters Pushing Teen Registration
- McCain At S.C. State
- State Dems Could Move Up Date
- Great Falls Case Gets Political
- Charleston's Riley Subpoenaed
- McCain In S.C. Tonight
- McCain Accuses Clinton Of Indecisiveness
- Judges Don't Like Greenville Court Site

Events

- GOP Presidential Debate -- 01.10.08
- Barnwell GOP Dinner -- 10.22.07
- Loris Bog-off -- 10.20.07
- Republican Campaign School - 10.19.07
- Ask Mitt Anything -- 10.18.07
- Romney Barbecue -- 10.18.07
- Romney Meet And Greet -- 10.18.07
- Aiken County Dems Fish Fry -- 10.11.07
- Jasper County Dems Banquet -- 10.11.07
- Clarendon County GOP Meeting -- 10.11.07

Press Releases

- Richardson Takes On Edwards
- Obama Says Bush Veto Hurts Children
- Dodd Wants Firm Deadline For War's End
- Spratt To Discuss Energy
- Obama Heading To Aiken
- Team Clinton Touring State This Weekend
- Huckabee Raises $1 million
- Brownback Discusses Iraq
- Clyburn Not Happy With Bush Veto
- Romney Tops $18 million

Setting The Stage

By - John Boyanoski
(July 31, 2007)

Not many people can say they've seen President Bush zoom by them on a bicycle first thing in the morning followed by a horde of Secret Service agents in golf carts, ambulances and fire trucks.

But it was an everyday experience for Keith Thornhill and the rest of the team at the Charleston-based Production Design Associates during the 2004 G-8 Summit.

"We'd hear this big commotion and look up, and be like 'holy smoke, that's the president,'" said Thornhill, the company's project manager and in charge of most political events.

PDA is a 16-year-old company that does video, audio and lights for all kinds of events, but has added a very big customer in the last few years -- the White House. And that has led to numerous other political events including the Democratic presidential debate at The Citadel last week and Bush's stop in Charleston the next day.

The company started working with the White House after a December 2001 event at The Citadel, Thornhill said.

"We established a good relationship," he said. "It just went from there."

Thornhill said the company has done at least 60 events with people such as Bush, Vice President Dick Cheney, U.S. Sen. John Kerry, D-Mass., and the Republican National Committee. They did the 2005 Inaugural ball. During the last week of the 2004 campaign, Thornhill went from Fort Myers, Fla., to Pontiac, Mich., then to Miami in a course of three days following President Bush.

"I'll be honest with you. It's awesome," Thornhill said. "You are right in the mix of things."

This is not easy work. They spent almost six weeks planning the schematics for the Charleston debate

PDA crews started working 10-hour days the Wednesday before the Monday debate to set up the massive amount of equipment. There was between 40,000 and 50,000 pounds of lighting equipment over the stage where the eight candidates spoke. There was 600 feet of trusses. There was the video wall where the clips from YouTube users were shown to the candidates. There were two 10 and half feet by seven and half video screens set up in the post-debate spin room.

Thornhill said the first 30 or so events were stressful because of the pressure of working around political figures. A blown fuse or falling light could have major repercussions.

"You realize that one mistake could create a moment that could cost somebody an election," he said. "It was nerve-racking. The worry factor is still there."

The most interesting event, though, was the 2004 G-8 Summit held at Sea Island, Ga. Besides the morning Bush caravan, the team would see people such as former British Prime Minister Tony Blair, Canadian Prime Minister Paul Martin and former French President Jacques Chirac.

"You'd be standing there, look away, and the next thing you know Paul Martin Would be standing next to you," he said.

John Boyanoski can be reached at jboyanoski@scpols.com.

BOOKMARK & SHARE THIS!

- Digg
- Google
- del.icio.us
- Yahoo!
- Reddit
- Facebook

SEARCH

Go

ADVERTISEMENT

RAISE CAMPAIGN MONEY ONLINE
CLICK & PLEDGE
1-866-999-2542

2 days of the best campaign training in the country

CAMPAIGNS & ELECTIONS
The magazine covering the business and trends of politics
Subscribe Now

To stay up-to-date on the latest campaign news, visit all of the sites in the Campaigns & Elections network.

www.CampaignsandElections.com
www.OHPols.com
www.NJPols.com
www.NHPols.com
www.SCPols.com
www.MyPoliticalPages.com

Campaigns & Elections Magazine
1655 North Fort Myer Dr. Suite 825 Arlington, VA 22209
Subscriptions: 800-771-8252, Phone: 703-778-4028, Fax: 703-778-4024

Return Policy | Privacy Statement | Feedback | Site Index
Copyright 2007 Campaigns & Elections magazine.
All Rights Reserved

scpols.com®

Subscribe to C&E

E-mail Go

CAMPAIGNS & ELECTIONS®

- FEATURES
- LATEST NEWS
- RESOURCES
- PRESS RELEASES
- ADVERTISING
- CAMPAIGN CONTROL
- SEMINARS
- ABOUT C&E

Latest News

- Statehouse Tightens Security
- McCain's Speech In Charleston
- League Of Women Voters Pushing Teen Registration
- McCain At S.C. State
- State Dems Could Move Up Date
- Great Falls Case Gets Political
- Charleston's Riley Subpoenaed
- McCain In S.C. Tonight
- McCain Accuses Clinton Of Indecisiveness
- Judges Don't Like Greenville Court Site

Events

- GOP Presidential Debate -- 01.10.08
- Barnwell GOP Dinner -- 10.22.07
- Loris Bog-off -- 10.20.07
- Republican Campaign School - 10.19.07
- Ask Mitt Anything -- 10.18.07
- Romney Barbecue -- 10.18.07
- Romney Meet And Greet -- 10.18.07
- Aiken County Dems Fish Fry -- 10.11.07
- Jasper County Dems Banquet -- 10.11.07
- Clarendon County GOP Meeting -- 10.11.07

Press Releases

- Richardson Takes On Edwards
- Obama Says Bush Veto Hurts Children
- Dodd Wants Firm Deadline For War's End
- Spratt To Discuss Energy
- Obama Heading To Aiken
- Team Clinton Touring State This Weekend
- Huckabee Raises $1 million
- Brownback Discusses Iraq
- Clyburn Not Happy With Bush Veto
- Romney Tops $18 million

Setting The Stage

By - John Boyanoski
(July 31, 2007)

Not many people can say they've seen President Bush zoom by them on a bicycle first thing in the morning followed by a horde of Secret Service agents in golf carts, ambulances and fire trucks.

But it was an everyday experience for Keith Thornhill and the rest of the team at the Charleston-based Production Design Associates during the 2004 G-8 Summit.

"We'd hear this big commotion and look up, and be like 'holy smoke, that's the president,'" said Thornhill, the company's project manager and in charge of most political events.

PDA is a 16-year-old company that does video, audio and lights for all kinds of events, but has added a very big customer in the last few years -- the White House. And that has led to numerous other political events including the Democratic presidential debate at The Citadel last week and Bush's stop in Charleston the next day.

The company started working with the White House after a December 2001 event at The Citadel, Thornhill said.

"We established a good relationship," he said. "It just went from there."

Thornhill said the company has done at least 60 events with people such as Bush, Vice President Dick Cheney, U.S. Sen. John Kerry, D-Mass., and the Republican National Committee. They did the 2005 Inaugural ball. During the last week of the 2004 campaign, Thornhill went from Fort Myers, Fla., to Pontiac, Mich., then to Miami in a course of three days following President Bush.

"I'll be honest with you. It's awesome," Thornhill said. "You are right in the mix of things."

This is not easy work. They spent almost six weeks planning the schematics for the Charleston debate

PDA crews started working 10-hour days the Wednesday before the Monday debate to set up the massive amount of equipment. There was between 40,000 and 50,000 pounds of lighting equipment over the stage where the eight candidates spoke. There was 600 feet of trusses. There was the video wall where the clips from YouTube users were shown to the candidates. There were two 10 and half feet by seven and half video screens set up in the post-debate spin room.

Thornhill said the first 30 or so events were stressful because of the pressure of working around political figures. A blown fuse or falling light could have major repercussions.

"You realize that one mistake could create a moment that could cost somebody an election," he said. "It was nerve-racking. The worry factor is still there."

The most interesting event, though, was the 2004 G-8 Summit held at Sea Island, Ga. Besides the morning Bush caravan, the team would see people such as former British Prime Minister Tony Blair, Canadian Prime Minister Paul Martin and former French President Jacques Chirac.

"You'd be standing there, look away, and the next thing you know Paul Martin Would be standing next to you," he said.

John Boyanoski can be reached at jboyanoski@scpols.com.

BOOKMARK & SHARE THIS!

- Digg
- del.icio.us
- Reddit
- Google
- Yahoo!
- Facebook

SEARCH

Go

ADVERTISEMENT

RAISE CAMPAIGN MONEY ONLINE
CLICK & PLEDGE
1-866-999-2542

2 days of the best campaign training in the country

CAMPAIGNS & ELECTIONS
The magazine covering the business and trends of politics
Subscribe Now

To stay up-to-date on the latest campaign news, visit all of the sites in the Campaigns & Elections network.

www.CampaignsandElections.com
www.OHPols.com
www.NJPols.com
www.NHPols.com
www.SCPols.com
www.MyPoliticalPages.com

Campaigns & Elections Magazine
1655 North Fort Myer Dr. Suite 825 Arlington, VA 22209
Subscriptions: 800-771-8252, Phone: 703-778-4028, Fax: 703-778-4024

Return Policy | Privacy Statement | Feedback | Site Index
Copyright 2007 Campaigns & Elections magazine.
All Rights Reserved

scpols.com[®]

Subscribe to C&E

E-mail Go

CAMPAIGNS & ELECTIONS[®]

- FEATURES
- LATEST NEWS
- RESOURCES
- PRESS RELEASES
- ADVERTISING
- CAMPAIGN CONTROL
- SEMINARS
- ABOUT C&E

Latest News

- Statehouse Tightens Security
- McCain's Speech In Charleston
- League Of Women Voters Pushing Teen Registration
- McCain At S.C. State
- State Dems Could Move Up Date
- Great Falls Case Gets Political
- Charleston's Riley Subpoenaed
- McCain In S.C. Tonight
- McCain Accuses Clinton Of Indecisiveness
- Judges Don't Like Greenville Court Site

Events

- GOP Presidential Debate -- 01.10.08
- Barnwell GOP Dinner -- 10.22.07
- Loris Bog-off -- 10.20.07
- Republican Campaign School - 10.19.07
- Ask Mitt Anything -- 10.18.07
- Romney Barbecue -- 10.18.07
- Romney Meet And Greet -- 10.18.07
- Aiken County Dems Fish Fry -- 10.11.07
- Jasper County Dems Banquet -- 10.11.07
- Clarendon County GOP Meeting -- 10.11.07

Press Releases

- Richardson Takes On Edwards
- Obama Says Bush Veto Hurts Children
- Dodd Wants Firm Deadline For War's End
- Spratt To Discuss Energy
- Obama Heading To Aiken
- Team Clinton Touring State This Weekend
- Huckabee Raises \$1 million
- Brownback Discusses Iraq
- Clyburn Not Happy With Bush Veto
- Romney Tops \$18 million

Setting The Stage

By - John Boyanoski
(July 31, 2007)

Not many people can say they've seen President Bush zoom by them on a bicycle first thing in the morning followed by a horde of Secret Service agents in golf carts, ambulances and fire trucks.

But it was an everyday experience for Keith Thornhill and the rest of the team at the Charleston-based Production Design Associates during the 2004 G-8 Summit.

"We'd hear this big commotion and look up, and be like 'holy smoke, that's the president,'" said Thornhill, the company's project manager and in charge of most political events.

PDA is a 16-year-old company that does video, audio and lights for all kinds of events, but has added a very big customer in the last few years -- the White House. And that has led to numerous other political events including the Democratic presidential debate at The Citadel last week and Bush's stop in Charleston the next day.

The company started working with the White House after a December 2001 event at The Citadel, Thornhill said.

"We established a good relationship," he said. "It just went from there."

Thornhill said the company has done at least 60 events with people such as Bush, Vice President Dick Cheney, U.S. Sen. John Kerry, D-Mass., and the Republican National Committee. They did the 2005 Inaugural ball. During the last week of the 2004 campaign, Thornhill went from Fort Myers, Fla., to Pontiac, Mich., then to Miami in a course of three days following President Bush.

"I'll be honest with you. It's awesome," Thornhill said. "You are right in the mix of things."

This is not easy work. They spent almost six weeks planning the schematics for the Charleston debate

PDA crews started working 10-hour days the Wednesday before the Monday debate to set up the massive amount of equipment. There was between 40,000 and 50,000 pounds of lighting equipment over the stage where the eight candidates spoke. There was 600 feet of trusses. There was the video wall where the clips from YouTube users were shown to the candidates. There were two 10 and half feet by seven and half video screens set up in the post-debate spin room.

Thornhill said the first 30 or so events were stressful because of the pressure of working around political figures. A blown fuse or falling light could have major repercussions.

"You realize that one mistake could create a moment that could cost somebody an election," he said. "It was nerve-racking. The worry factor is still there."

The most interesting event, though, was the 2004 G-8 Summit held at Sea Island, Ga. Besides the morning Bush caravan, the team would see people such as former British Prime Minister Tony Blair, Canadian Prime Minister Paul Martin and former French President Jacques Chirac.

"You'd be standing there, look away, and the next thing you know Paul Martin Would be standing next to you," he said.

John Boyanoski can be reached at jboyanoski@scpols.com.

BOOKMARK & SHARE THIS!

- Digg
- Google
- del.icio.us
- Yahoo!
- Reddit
- Facebook

SEARCH

Go

ADVERTISEMENT

RAISE CAMPAIGN MONEY ONLINE

CLICK & PLEDGE

1-866-999-2542

2 days of the best campaign training in the country

CAMPAIGNS & ELECTIONS

The magazine covering the business and trends of politics

Subscribe Now

To stay up-to-date on the latest campaign news, visit all of the sites in the Campaigns & Elections network.

www.CampaignsandElections.com
www.OHPols.com
www.NJPols.com
www.NHPols.com
www.SCPols.com
www.MyPoliticalPages.com

Campaigns & Elections Magazine
1655 North Fort Myer Dr. Suite 825 Arlington, VA 22209
Subscriptions: 800-771-8252, Phone: 703-778-4028, Fax: 703-778-4024

Return Policy | Privacy Statement | Feedback | Site Index
Copyright 2007 Campaigns & Elections magazine.
All Rights Reserved